Best Databases to Start

- Library Catalog: For Rose State, and Libraries Worldwide
- RSC Online Databases
  - Credo Reference: Background information
  - EBSCOhost: Start with Academic Search Complete, but you can also search all databases at once.
  - New York Times (search back to 1851)
  - Newsbank (National and World newspapers)
  - The Oklahoman (back to September 25, 1901)

Selected Online Sources

- Foreign Relations of the United States (FRUS) (Office of the Historian)
  - Other Electronic resources for US Foreign Relations
- Oklahoma Department of Libraries: History in the Archives
- Congressional Record (Current back to 1995)
- U.S. Government Information
  - GovInfo: What’s Available Help on how to search
  - Congressional Record (back to 1873)
- Google Books:
- CIA Freedom Of Information Act Reading Room
- OpenLibrary.org
- American Memory
- Frontline Diplomacy (from the Library of Congress)
- Presidential Libraries
  - https://www.archives.gov/presidential-libraries/research
- The National Archives Research Tools Also, if you are new to archival research, they have a handy guide and some research tips that will help you along the way.
- The Librarians Index to the Internet: (This is no longer being updated, but the sources are still good.) Go to Resources by Subject, Arts and Humanities, and then look at History. Also you can utilize the search function too.
- The World Wide Web Virtual Library
- Digital Book Index
- Cold War International History Project: Virtual Archive
- Texas Tech Vietnam Archive
- Carl Albert Center Congressional Archives

Remember, use caution when looking for sources on the web. Here is a guide that will help you with evaluating web sites.